The beautiful library at Joplin's rebuilt Irving Elementary School.

A memorial in Joplin's Cunningham Park.

gift I received a few weeks after my second trip to Joplin, in October 2015.

It arrived in a large box. It was from the Satterlee family.

Inside the box was a large wooden cross. Shannon's note explained that it was made out of wreckage of the Joplin tornado.

The cross hangs over my desk at home. It reminds me that the story of Joplin is not only one of disaster and tragedy. It is one of hope, faith, and healing. •
